Orderly Evolution

Go-Slow Policy of Labor In the United Kingdom Slaps Socialization Bogey

By WILLIAM SHIRER

LONDON, Oct. 22.—One leaves this island for the bleak continent after an all too brief stay, full of exciting yet confused impressions, but pretty certain of one thing. The evolution toward a state-controlled economy with government ownership of a few key industries will be persistent but gradual and orderly. In case any one back home has any faint fears—there will be no revolution of anything slightly resembling it as long as the present Socialist government is at the helm.

When a Conservative asked Mr. Attlee the other day whether in view of the atomic developments he could give an assurance that Britain would not be left behind during the next industrial revolution, the Labor Prime Minister assured him, "that we do not intend to be left behind in any revolution." The remark evoked laughter from all sides of the House, British political writers commented that Mr. Attlee's sense of humor—hitherto not monumental, they said—was improving.

A few years ago perhaps the nationalization of the Bank of England might have provoked hearty congratulations among the solid men of property in Britain. It is a measure of Britain's present mood that the stock of the bank fell 10 points during the week before the Socialist bill to nationalize it was introduced. Since Aug. 7 it had risen forty points. Under the terms of the bill, the stockholders will receive very handsome compensation, indeed, in fact, they will continue to receive from their holdings the same income for the next five years as they have now received in the past. This happens to amount to a 12 per cent return. If it is revolution or Socialism, I hope our Wall Street banks will go in for some. Twenty per cent on your investment, guaranteed by the state, is not exactly a crushing blow to the investor. In Capitalist America there must be some who will take to the CRIPPS REASSURES INDUSTRY

The surprising gesture of Britain's Labor government to the owners of England stockholders is apparently well known to those who own stocks in other great enterprises earmarked for nationalization. At any rate, stocks in many railways and electricity did rather well last week.

Nor will the new Labor government be any less anxious to get the Tories in helping British business to exploit foreign markets. Indeed, since the Labor government depends, in the last analysis, on exporting goods to a point 50 per cent above pre-war levels, private exporters will have the power to use the resources of the state behind them to a degree never before experienced.

We will not neglect any steps which will make our industries more competitive in the markets of the world. Sir Stafford Cripse, president of the Board of Trade, told Commons last week, and added: "The government must get the best advice it can on what these steps should be."

BUSINESS WELCOMES BACKING

It has already set about to get this advice in an ingenious way. It has established so-called tripartite "working parties" in the main export industries. They are made up of equal thirds of representatives of employers, workers and independent members. The last group is to represent not only the consumers but the national interests. The working parties will give more than advice on how to advance exports. Their task, as outlined in Parliament last week, is to work out plans for renovating, each industry, improving organization, production and distribution methods, so that competition can be met.

It is a foregone conclusion that the state henceforth will play a more important role in the economy. But British entrepreneurs, unlike their American counterparts, do not mind. In fact, most of them welcome it.

The reason for this attitude among British business men is enlightening. For one thing, they realize that the only serious competition for world trade during the next few years will come from America. To meet that competition, they know they will need the help of the state. There is another factor. Both Labor and Conservative circles are somehow convinced that the United States, with its fantastical confidence in the "free enterprise" system, is headed for a soft fall some five years hence after the shortages resulting from the war have been made good. They want to insulate themselves, if they can, from the shock of an American depression. The best way, they think, is to plan their economy.

LAUGHTER GREETS "FREE TRADE"

I find Labor circles, for instance, British as determined as the Tories to maintain the sterling bloc. They are aware, as Dr. Schaech noted in Germany, that there are many trade advantages in having a number of countries which are not only your creditors but tied to your currency. These countries are better goods at cheaper prices than any other nation—and America is the only other nation—has better goods at cheaper prices.

Nor will the Labor government willingly abandon imperial preference, which was established by a Conservative predecessor. More to the point, it is a Tory in mind a third era, which they would like to fence off from the rest of the world. Western bloc, and would comprise, for instance, the British Empire, the Low Countries and France.

Talk of "free trade" in this one-time clotted of free trade provokes mostly laughter today. Rightly or wrongly, the British feel that unless they can maintain these three preserves—sterling bloc, the Western bloc, and would comprise, for instance, the British Empire, the Low Countries and France.

WANT NO ROOM OR CRASH Unlike us, they still have to keep their bells uncomfortably tight. Tired though they are, after six years of war and five of bombing, they are still on scant war-time rations. They could do with more food, and every one needs new clothing. The shortage of housing is tragic. Life as water comes a grim.

But they are in no mood for short cuts to temporary prosperity and then the inevitable slide into crash. This time they want to work out a long-term plan for a decent existence for all the people. The House of Commons will vote maintenance for another year of rigid state control on materials and services. Men and women will continue to work where the community decides they are most needed. Materials will be allocated on the same principle.

There is no doubt that time is what the vast majority of people in Britain insist upon. The landslide victory of labor in the election showed it. Recent by-elections, which have given labor candidates even bigger majorities than last July, prove there is no slackening off of that resolve.

School Financing Will Be Discussed At Assn. Meeting

"Financing the City Schools" has been selected as the title of the address to be given the Mountain Home and School Association at its meeting to be held in the library of Western high school at 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 22. Parents are informed on the handbill, notifying them of the meeting that W. G. Gail, who is in action need of has instruments to complete the plans for the school orchestra he intends to start.

FIRST COTTON-SEED MILL DAR-ES-SALAAM, Tanganyika.—(CP)—Another step forward in the industrial future of Tanganyika, East Africa, has just been made with the opening here of the first cotton-seed oil mill. The mill aims at handling between four and five thousand tons of cottonseed a year, producing a refined oil suitable for cooking purposes.

SIGNS NAME FOR VICTORY—Honor of being the purchaser of the first bond sold in the Ninth Victory Loan campaign went to Lt. K. J. Rootes, son of J. I. and Mrs. Rootes, 9711 106 street. Above, Lt. Rootes is seen signing an application form for a bond sold to him by Ft. Lt. D. E. West, who recently returned to Canada after spending a considerable time in a German prisoner of war camp. The same spirit that prompted Lt. Rootes to go out to fight the nation's battles prompted him to be first in the line in the purchasing of bonds to consolidate the Victory gained by the Allies and to provide the foundation for a lasting peace. Lt. Rootes was severely wounded in the battle of Navajo Canal in 1941, and has been in hospitals in Italy, Britain and Canada since December, 1941. He will be in hospital here for at least another year before the wounds he then received have completely healed. From his hospital cot he appealed to all Edmontonians to follow his example and "sign their names for Victory."

Edmonton Philharmonic Society Triumphs With Opening Concert

Under the baton of Abe Frakin, and in the presence of a large and enthusiastic audience the Edmonton Philharmonic Society commenced its second season of concerts at the Empire theatre on Sunday night, Frank Williams, baritone, was the assisting artist. The orchestra is numerically stronger than last year and some losses suffered by the violin section have been balanced by the return of some players who were absent on active service.

AN IMPROVEMENT On the whole there was a distinct improvement in the performance over the point at which operations were concluded last spring. The organization as a whole played with more confidence, better balance and a spirit engendered by work already well done serving as an inspiration to go on to higher things.

Mr. Frakin, too, has gained in conductorial authority and revealed a greater grasp of the scores and players. As a result the performance as a whole was satisfying and encouraging and gives promise of a continued upward curve in proficiency as the season progresses.

It must be recorded that all was not perfect. There were lapses of intonation, some tendency toward stridency, ruggedness in full orchestra passages, and signs of inability to go on to higher things.

However, these shortcomings were overshadowed by a little from a generally commendable performance. There is no doubt that with diligent application to the task on hand most of these matters could be all but eliminated.

DESERVE CREDIT

The players as a whole deserve much credit for the work they put in on the performance and for the high quality of the playing. Mr. Frakin showed himself thoroughly conversant with the music and with the requirements thereof. He knew what he wanted, knew how to go after it and obtain the desired results. His contribution to the success of the evening was tremendous.

The program included Mendelssohn's Ray Blue overture; Beethoven's Symphony No. 3 in C Major; Walter's Prize Song from "Die Meistersinger"; Wagner's numbers for string orchestra, "Auch's Death and Anita's Dance from Peer Gynt Suite No. 1, by Grieg; Meadowland; Knipper's Dances from a ballet, and the overture to the opera "The Bat," Johann Strauss.

FRANK WILLIAMS was at his best in conducting "The Elijah" and Mendelssohn's "The Elijah" and "The Meistersinger." Wagner's numbers for string orchestra, "Auch's Death and Anita's Dance from Peer Gynt Suite No. 1, by Grieg; Meadowland; Knipper's Dances from a ballet, and the overture to the opera "The Bat," Johann Strauss.

Freed of Charge

Jailed for 20 Years, Seeks Own Relatives

MONTREAL, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Michael Gordon Fulker, who early this week was released from a murder charge after having spent 20 years behind prison walls, now is busy trying to piece together fragmentary remnants of a family he barely remembers.

The grey-haired, 41-year-old man was arrested in 1925 charged with the murder of an old harrist, Leo Demers, whose body had been found six years before in a pig pen not far from Shawbridge where Fulker had been confined at a boy's farm. He was judged mentally unfit to stand trial and was sent to several city hospitals and finally to the mental wing of the Boreas jail. Last November he was declared sane and ordered to jail. Tuesday of this week, Mr. Justice Wilfrid Laurier ordered the case dismissed on the grounds that the Crown could produce neither "evidence" or evidence of Fulker left the courts a free man.

NOW SEEKS CLUES

Fulker now is living at the home of Mrs. Gordon Phillips, Protestant chaplain at Boreas, and is seeking clues to his own identity. He seems to remember having been called George when he was very young, even before he was absorbed by his American parents. He believes both his parents were working in an upholstery shop somewhere, and that their children were cared for by friends and relatives. He vaguely remembers a sister named Margaret, and a brother Charles, but can't be sure.

A man named Fulker adopted him when he was 18. He tried to run away and was sent to the Shawbridge boys farm for five years. When he was released in 1919, he worked on a number of farms in Ontario, until one day, six years later, determined to seek his home for the killing of Demers.

Army Spont Policy

OTTAWA, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Army leave now may participate in civil leagues, excluding professional groups, and may play in games outside the boundaries of their command, as part of an expanded army sports policy announced Saturday by defense headquarters.

The new policy emphasizes that "every possible encouragement" is to be accorded military personnel to engage in organized, unit and higher command sports.

Army personnel are also permitted to play with civilian teams in their off-duty hours, but the army will not subsidize such activity by requesting them or granting them special privileges.

These days most people are working harder, working more, doing less. The stress on body and brain makes physical fitness more important than ever. Today's men living longer, healthier, more active lives need more physical activity. That's why Dr. KIDNEY PILLS are so popular. Look for the box with the red seal.

BUILT BY CO-OPERATION

"I came to build" ... said Calvert 300 years ago

CALVERT, famous 17th century English statesman and Secretary of State to King James I, founded, over three centuries ago, pioneer colonies in Newfoundland and Maryland.

"All have co-operated," said Calvert of the early settlers in 1622. Thus, many generations ago, Calvert, man of vision, planted seeds of co-operation and friendship between the Old World and the New.

History has proven Calvert's wisdom... demonstrated today in the strong partnership between the British Commonwealth and the United States for the benefit of all mankind.

Co-operation between nations will build the future

England and America must continue to co-operate for the future security of the world. We of Canada are best fitted to preserve the great partnership between Britain and the United States of America... for we are their mutual friend, the interpreter of one to the other.

Every Canadian can help to guarantee lasting peace by fostering co-operation between the British Commonwealth and the United States.

Hold Annual Meeting

Del Wood President Alberta Basketball

Del Wood, of Hillspring, Alta., was elected president of the Alberta Basketball Association at the annual meeting held in Calgary yesterday. J. Percy Page of Edmonton was re-named honorary president and Clare Hollingsworth is again vice-president.

Lee Hill, Calgary, as past president, becomes a member of the executive and Aubrey Earl of Carleton Place, the post of secretary-treasurer.

Ed. Tomick of Edmonton becomes northern district organizer, Cal Fletcher, Calgary, holding a similar position for the central district and Charles Cheesman of Magath again being named for south district.

Life memberships in the association were unanimously awarded J. Percy Page and Bill Tait of Edmonton, Bill Dingle and Ray Larcombe of Calgary and J. H. Walker of Raymond in recognition of valuable work on behalf of basketball in the province.

Provision was made for a referee school to be held in Calgary, each district to send prospective officials. A uniform interpretation of rules throughout the province is aimed at. Thorough discussion of the rules and opportunities to demonstrate under actual playing conditions will be included in the course.

Several changes in the constitution were approved, one being that in future a player contemplating a transfer must first apply in writing to the district organizer.

No cards from Women's Alberta Amateur Athletic Union are now required by girls. A doctor's certificate, however, is necessary.

Approval of league or association must be obtained from the association immediately following the organization meetings.

Membership fee for senior men's and women's clubs has been raised to $10.00, and their training camp to $20.00, and their training camp to $20.00, and their training camp to $20.00.

Resolution was approved that "Players previously registered on a suspended club shall, indicate, in writing by Sept. 15 of the current season any desire to transfer to another club which is affiliated with the association."

Attending the annual meeting from Edmonton were J. Percy Page, Jack Hedder, Clare Hollingsworth, Ed. Tomick, Armour Bull and Bob Scott.

Boston Bruins End Training Camp

QUEBEC, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League broke their training camp here Sunday and left last night to return to Boston where they will open the season against Chicago Black Hawks Wednesday.

Art Ross would not comment on the prospects of his team, nor would he take under contract. He added, however, that he would raise up the names of the successful candidates for the team in Boston Tuesday.

Canadians Beat Quebec Seniors

MONTREAL, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Montreal Canadiens edged out the Quebec Senior Hockey League All-Stars 7-6 in a seven-on-seven exhibition game here, after being held to a 3-3 deadlock by the All-Stars at the first period, and were still leading 5-3 in the second, however, Fraser was replaced by Jerry McNeil and the Canadiens rolled in with four goals to carry the game.

Respects Opposition

Adams Looks for Red Wings Do "Pretty Good" this Year

By DOUG VAUGHAN

DETROIT, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Expansive but with wholesome respect for the opposition, manager Jack Adams predicts a "pretty good" future for Detroit Red Wings in their 1945-46 National Hockey League schedule which opens here next Sunday against Boston Bruins.

"We'll have a pretty young team and without being overly optimistic I think it will be a pretty good one," said the dean of NHL managers who steered Red Wings to last season's Stanley Cup final series against Toronto Maple Leafs.

Twenty-two players are still in camp grooming for the opener, reduced from the more than 30 candidates on hand for Detroit's first practice. Thirteen are holdovers from last season, seven are fresh from the armed services and there are two candidates not long out of the amateur ranks.

Adams intends to carry at least 18 players. That he figures he has done a "pretty good job of pruning" is in parting the original turnout from 22. With the surplus he's already stocked two minor league farm teams, Indianapolis Capitals and the American League and Omaha Knights of the United States League.

The 1944-45 veterans include Harry Lumley, seasonal young netminder from Owen Sound, Ont., defencemen Earl Serbell, Bill (Flash) Holtz, Bill Quackenbush and Hal Jackson and forwards Joe Carveth, Mud Bruneteau, Eddie Brannstrom, Syd Howe, Carl Liscombe, Ted Lindsay, Murray Armstrong and Steve Wooley.

Players back after varying periods of military service are Jack Stewart, all-star defenceman three years ago; Doug McGeck, hard-core rearguard from Brantford, Ont., and forwards Harry Watson, Jimmy Conacher, Adam Brown, Johnny Hollos and Cliff Simpson. The two others are Gerry Couture from the University of Saskatchewan, and Fernand Gauthier from Montreal Canadiens, Couture returned from Moose Jaw Canucks, last year's Memorial Cup finalists, to play a couple of games in the Stanley cup series against Leafs while Gauthier was obtained last week as final payment in a deal whereby Canadian acquired Billy Reay, former playing coach of Quebec, as a senior forward device.

Adams says Stewart—"the best

Introducing the character in the way of her Arabian origin gave her the mystique that the film was a fantasy enough to guess. The skirt was so white it glowed while the collar was black and at each joint, the waist was made of white satin with three quarter-length sleeves and a sweet-bow neckline. Small self-covered buttons fastened the gown down back to waistline at back. Her costume seemed not well as slightly on trim and was held in place with a wreath of orange blossom. She carried a shower bouquet of red roses and her sandals were silver. The

BRIDAL ATTENDANTS

Mrs. Eleanor Steppney, who attended her sister as matron-of-honor, wore a salmon pink cut-cape floor-length gown made with short puff sleeves and sweetheart neckline. A small feather hat and elbow-length mitts, the same shade as her gown, completed her ensemble.

More than 150 persons attended the tea held by the Ladies' Auxiliary to the United Travellers, in the Empire room of the Hudson's Bay company store, Saturday afternoon. The tea was in aid of the Cancer

Wainwright's Story—No. 12 Half-Starved Forces Of Gen. Wainwright See Writing on Wall

General King Informs Commander He Might Have to Surrender Bataan—
Food Shortage Grows More Acute

This is the twelfth of a series by General Jonathan M. Wainwright, telling for the first time the real story of the humiliating early defeat suffered by U.S. forces in the Philippines. Today General Wainwright outlines his struggle to feed his starving Bataan defenders, tells of MacArthur's efforts to capture Jap stores, and hears the depressing word from Maj. Gen. Edward P. King that he might have to surrender to the Japs.—EDITOR.

One of my first acts after assuming command of all U.S. forces in the Philippines—on March 21, 1942—was to take personal charge of my supplies. Aside from the pressing problem of food for the starving men, I especially needed to have ammunition of many kinds. I especially needed type of anti-aircraft ammunition capable of keeping Jap bombers, fighters and their unending observation planes high enough to cut into their effectiveness.

There were two types of anti-aircraft ammunition in use then. We had what was called the powder-train fused ammunition, in which the fuse exploded the shell after burning a coil of powder, but the maximum altitude you could get out of that type was about 20,000 feet.

The other type was mechanically fused ammunition which had, in effect, a set of watchworks in the fuse. You could set those works to explode the shell as high as 28,000 feet. We had but little of this, so immediately after my arrival on The Rock I commenced working on General MacArthur and the war department to get me more of this type.

I was able to send some of Corregidor's food stocks over to Bataan. About the middle of February, MacArthur, looking to the inevitable future, had stocked up a fair store of provisions on The Rock. He had envisioned a last-ditch stand on Corregidor by 20,000 men, not the 11,000 or so he actually had. He had expected enough food to feed them on half rations until July 1, 1942.

Beginning with my arrival on The Rock I began parceling out some of that food to Bataan. But it was little more than a crumb for the 20,000 starving men over there. Yet the shipments cut into Corregidor's stock to a point where I figured—at the start of the battle for The Rock—that our 11,000 defenders would consume it all by June, 1942, on less than half rations.

LEARN OF SUPPLY SHIPS

I learned shortly after getting to Corregidor that there were two supply ships in Philippine waters. They were loaded with food, gas and oil. The food ship was at Cebu City and the fuel ship at Iloilo, on Panay. I contacted my officers at those islands and asked them to find interisland skippers willing to run the gauntlet up to Corregidor.

They replied that there was no way of persuading a skipper to do this without assurance that his ship would be protected all the way up and back. So I asked MacArthur by radio to send up a squadron of bombers to Mindanao. I planned to use the remaining motor torpedo boats to assist, and with them and the bombers, attempt to get our supplies up to The Rock. With that in mind I sent an air staff officer down to Mindanao to co-ordinate the plan.

I still do not know the cause, but there was a nerve-wrecking delay of days and days. In final desperation of food, I turned to Capt. Kenneth Huettel, USN, who told me the navy had two submarines in Philippine waters. With MacArthur's help I had those submarines put in at Cebu, untold their torpedoes, and fill up with U.S. Army rations. Between the two of them they could haul 32 tons of food. It was less than half a day's rations for Bataan, but even that would be a Godsend.

FALL DRAWS NEARER

Even here there was delay, delay which saw Bataan come closer and closer to its fall. I was worried me greatly. I had sent Maj. Gen. Edward P. King, in charge of the Luzon forces. He was the senior American officer on Bataan after I made my move. I gave him my old headquarters just north of Mariveles, and presented him with my trailer. I was not much of a gift, nor was his new role an enviable one. A sword hung over his head, not over the heads of his battered men....

Compared to Bataan, it was peaceful on Corregidor the day I reported. For a change, there was no shooting being fired. I had not been able to rest much for three months, and I said to myself, "Here's where I get some sleep." But there was not much chance. The scope of the new job took up additional hours of paper work. My first communique told of a surprise raid made by a handful of American and Filipino troops near Zamboanga, on Mindanao, and later that same day there began a fierce, almost unrelenting artillery fire against Corregidor.

ROUNDED BY GUNS

The Japs had moved a few long-range, 165 mm. guns into Cavite, one oval base six miles away on the south shore of Manila Bay. These guns were now augmented with more guns, and Fort Drum, Frank and Hughes began to suffer increasingly with us. We shot back with what we had, adding to the din. But we had no observation, as had they, with their interisland planes aloft overhead.

On March 22 our patrols on Bataan ran into furious opposition, indicating the closer approach to our lines of heavier Jap forces. More Jap warships joined the craft already in Philippine waters, making the organized blockade of the two supply ships less possible by the hour.

I sent word of all this to MacArthur and the war department, and the war department to sustain a dog-fight. Those men slowed down the Jap assault by dawn. But the hand-writing was vivid on the wall.

My old I Corps, on the western side of Bataan, did not go unscathed. It, too, was hit and its movement was hampered by shelling from Jap warships offshore in the China Sea. Jap dive bombers heavily struck both corps.

NEW SINISTER NOTE

The Bataan battle took on a new sinister note on the morning of April 3 when the Japs took holes in the middle of Parker's Corps and buckled the right flank of the I Corps. Knots of trapped Japs, troops of forward elements were wiped out in toe-to-toe fighting, but others held their gains. We gave ground slowly, our artillery shelling point-blank at waves of advancing troops.

Corregidor and the other forts took their beating from Cavite, and on Good Friday of that dismal Easter Week the Jap barred another section of what might be called his new-type bomber, on Mindanao. On April 4 they began using a new-type bomber, on Mindanao, one which exploded with a belch of flame before it hit the ground. New waves of shock troops hit Parker's line on the night of April 4 and Jap barges, mounting 75

PAID PARKER VISIT

With Major Tom Dooley, my aide, I visited Gen. Parker that day. We took a crash boat to Cavite, on the southeastern tip of Bataan, to see the Japs first to discuss the overall situation. King wanted to go with us to Parker's headquarters, but I asked him to stay where he was, keeping an eye on both the I and II Corps.

Dooley drove men on like a wild man, but was indeed prevented from the Japs. Parker's headquarters were just back of Limay, up the coast. We left for a jeep on a wooded hill, climbed a trail and found him. He had just secured that Gen. Lino's First Division of the II Corps left Bataan, was suffering crushing losses. Parker and his half-wounded officers scanned their maps and outlined a counter-attack plan against the Japs. The attack was carried out this morning by of Brig. Gen. Mateo M. Capangin, Brigadier Twenty-First Division. I approved the plan, but with modifications as to the outcome, and Dooley and I went back down the trail to the jeep. Tom drove it so hard on the way back to Cavite that he broke an axle. We reached our head, however, and started back for Corregidor. As we approached a large force of Jap bombers passed overhead. They did not mind us, but went on to Corregidor. We watched the tremendous bombing as we approached The Rock. Corregidor was burning like the devil by the time we docked.

SENDS COMMUNIQUE

On April 7 a black day, I sent to Washington this communique: "Superior enemy forces, supported by tanks and artillery, continue to attack the centre of our line in Bataan. The Japanese have thrown fresh troops into the fight and have made some progress. Heavy losses have been sustained by our forces and by the enemy."

Japanese dive bombers are assisting in the attack, dropping bombs and machine-gunning our front-line troops. "The enemy again bombed one of our field hospitals, inflicting heavy casualties among wounded soldiers undergoing treatment. The attack was carried out this morning by

THE VICTORY LOAN SALESMAN will call on you once IN THE NEXT TWELVE MONTHS

The Victory Loan Salesman calls on you so that you may make your purchases in the way most convenient to yourself — unhurried and in comfortable surroundings. Plan for his visit, and be ready for him when he calls. There will not be another Victory Loan for twelve months; so plan your savings on a yearly basis. The same rate of saving as previously will buy you twice as many bonds this time. In thankfulness for Victory — for rehabilitation of our returned men and women — as a nest-egg of savings at good interest — let's make this 9th Victory Loan the biggest yet.

4 WAYS TO BUY

(1) You may give your order to the Victory Loan Salesman when he calls on you. (2) Place your order with any Bank or Loan or Trust Company. And you can also buy through your Employer for cash, or (4) on the Payroll Savings Plan.

Any one of these agencies will give you every assistance in completing your application.

Bonds may be bought in denominations of $10, $20, $50, $100 or larger.

A SOUND INVESTMENT

What is the security back of Victory Bonds, that makes them such a worthwhile and sound investment? They are backed by all the natural wealth of this vast Dominion — all the resources of forest, lakes, rivers and minerals. Too, Canada has never yet failed to pay, in full, a Dominion Bond obligation. Victory Bonds pay you good interest now, they are marketable any time you urgently need money, and return their full value at maturity. Buy, and hold, Victory Bonds.

Veterans' Housing Problems Aired at City Legion Meet

Housing problems of returned veterans and amendments to the branch by-laws occupied most of the time at the regular monthly meeting of Branch No. 24 of the Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., held in the Memorial Hall Sunday afternoon.

Light Agenda Faces Council Meeting Monday

Appointment of William Carby as assistant superintendent of the power, water supply and purification plant, and of Superintendent Alex. Riddell as deputy chief constable will be reported to city council Monday night by the city commissioners.

The appointments have been made in line with a request from council dealing with the salaries of municipal chiefs and assistants where their salary rate in the new schedule recently adopted is lower than they now receive. The commissioners were asked to make recommendations as to the bracket or year of schedule these salaries should be placed.

Schedules will also be submitted covering the city claims agent and the assistant fire chief, and a revised schedule for the city architect to make provision for work done as technical adviser to the Town Planning Commission and the Zoning Appeal Board.

LIGHT AGENDA

There is only a light agenda for the final meeting of the present council, with only a few non-contentious matters being included in the commissioners' report. One item deals with boulevarding 29 avenues between 100 and 110 streets, at a cost of $1,000, and the grading, curbing and graveling of 106 ave. between 122 and 128 streets. Both projects are local improvements which sufficiently engaged petitioners have been received, and the city engineer is seeking authority to proceed with the work.

Both the city engineer and the chief of the police traffic squad are in favor of centre lines being placed in all main highways in the city, and Mr. Haddon states in a report to council that these lines will be included in any 1946 paving projects.

Council will consider a request from the Edmonton Separate School Board to supply bus service from Jasper avenue, and 109 street through the subway to the district in which the St. Joseph's school is located at 109 street and 108 avenue.

It is pointed out in the report for this service that the bus line would be useful as an accommodation to the large number of students attending who live in the West end, and the West end and South Side students attending McDougall Commercial school. The route to the school by way of Jasper avenue, 101 street and 107 avenue is very inconvenient, it is pointed out.

ARTS DELEGATION

A delegation from the Allied Arts Council will seek from council a recommendation to appoint a full-time supervisor of allied arts for the city, and also will receive an application for the exclusive use of the Allied Arts Council of the American Red Cross club building at 100 street and 109 street when this building is vacated by the American armed forces.

Council will be asked by the Edmonton Junior Chamber of Commerce to appoint a committee to thoroughly investigate the polling system in use in municipal elections.

In its communication to council the Junior Chamber pointed out that, in the opinion of Junior Chamber members, the polling system is entirely inadequate. It causes voters to travel long distances within polling divisions, and causes many to become discouraged with the waiting at polls presented by the system.

It recommended that the Dominion and provincial polling systems be investigated, and further that the municipal polling divisions, wherever possible, should be arranged to conform.

Banff Arts School Important Contribution to Canadian Culture Students Attend From all Over Continent, 1945 Enrolment High

Canada's great artists often act as instructors at the Banff School of Fine Arts. A. Y. Jackson (above) advises an art student in the technique of painting.

Max Pirani, internationally-famed concert pianist, is one of the many eminent instructors. To his classes come both new and experienced students for instruction.

Originality in color and design is emphasized in the weaving classes where heavy enrolment indicates a revival of interest in the handicrafts of the Dominion.

has been there since before the recent war.

Another member who said he worked for one of the housing administrators, charged that most of the trouble was due to red tape and possibly some graft.

"If the 10 buildings at the Jesuit College site were made available for housing, they could be ready for occupancy within six weeks. We need someone in authority who can take drastic measures against those who are getting a corner on materials and buildings," he said.

"This man should be a person who understands the building business thoroughly and whose honesty is above suspicion," he added.

REPORT ON HOSPITAL

A. C. Anderson, reporting for the hospital visiting committee, reported there has been no improvement in conditions in the sub-cubical ward at the General hospital, where it was recently charged that veterans suffering from tuberculosis are not receiving adequate food, sunlight and fresh air.

The meeting gave approval to a by-law amendment, introduced by William Irwin, chairman of the by-laws committee.

The section providing that three members of the executive of nine be veterans of World War Two has now been dropped. The amendment providing for an end to "discrimination" between veterans of the two wars with any member being eligible for office regardless of when he served in.

Other amendments to the by-laws, brought up by Mr. Irwin, will be voted on by the council.

INITIATE MEMBERS

As the meeting opened scores of new members participated in a mass initiation ceremony. The President, Tanager and membership committee chairman G. B. Scott, the latter announced that the branch membership now stands at 1,500, making it the most powerful numerically of any branch in the Dominion.

One Injured In Week-End Auto Smashes

One person was slightly injured and one was arrested on a charge of dangerous driving, as the result of traffic accidents in the city Saturday night, police reported Monday.

Mrs. Andrew A. Adams, 10205 95 street, suffered a slight cut on her face when a truck driven by her husband hit the rear of a car which had collided with still another car at 6:45 p.m. Saturday.

Max Rabiner, 20203 104 street, told police he was driving west on Jasper avenue, when he collided with a car driven by Joseph J. Falls of Morville, who had completed a turn at the 107 street intersection. The Adams truck struck the rear of Rabiner's car.

Rabiner's car was damaged on the right front fender and rear bumper. The Falls car was damaged on the left rear fender and the running board, and the truck suffered battered front fender, grill and radiator.

Mrs. Adams was taken to the General Hospital by Rabiner.

MAN ARRESTED

C. B. Johnson of the Ritz Hotel was arrested and charged with dangerous driving after a collision between his car and a car driven by Frank Makepeace, 10219 144 street at 149 street and Buoy Plain Road at 3:35 p.m. Saturday.

Johnson told police he was driving east on Buoy Plain Road when he collided with the other car, coming from the opposite direction, at both were turning south on 149 street. The Johnson car carried the other vehicle 30 feet before coming to a stop.

The Makepeace car was badly damaged on the right side and front end.

Police were seeking two billion drivers who caused damage to as many vehicles Saturday.

VEHICLE CRASHES

Mrs. Mary Mary, of 9227 111 avenue, reported that her car was parked in front of that address at 8 p.m. Saturday when it was struck from the rear by an eastbound light delivery truck, which "kept on going" after the collision.

Steve Strach, 296 113 avenue, told police he was struck from the rear at 8:25 p.m. by a three-quarter-ton dark pickup truck, as he stopped at the Kingsway-101 street intersection while a street car took on passengers.

Strach said he parked his car on the Kingsway-101 street after the accident, and found the truck had disappeared south on 101 street.

G. E. Baker, of 10628 126 street, and Stanley Polys, of 10604 106 street at 11:30 p.m. Saturday, Baker said he was involved in an accident at Jasper avenue and 106 street at 11:30 p.m. Saturday.

Baker said he was driving west on Jasper when he was struck from the rear by Polys's car. Polys told police he had stepped on the brake but his foot slipped and struck the gas feed, causing the car to skid.

Polys said he suffered a damaged front fender and grill.

Baker's car was damaged on the right front fender and grill.
